Excerpt from In Memory Of Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo, Who Gave The World California, 1542 World's knowledge more than eight hundred miles or the Coast is today one of the most important in the world's economies Hence it is not by chance that the historian realizes that California would not be today a part of the United States. Two sloops of 600 tons each, the San Salvador and the consort Victoria, sailed from La Navidad, Mexico, June 27, 1542. On the 28th of September he anchored in the wonderful Bay of San Diego, a spacious and beautiful harbor where the 16 oaks of the warm 95° in reports in his modest Diario, or.
