

NEAL

S
H
U
S T
E
R
M
A N

What if your parents could unwind you?

Unwind

Resumo de Unwind

For use in schools and libraries only. Fast-forward to the future, after the Second Civil War. According to new laws, life is inviolable from the moment of birth until age 13.

Between the ages of 13 and 18, however, parents can have their child "unwound," a process by which the child's organs are transplanted into different donors so that life doesn't technically end.

Acesse aqui a versão completa deste livro